Airline Responsibility: Passport validity

Write compliant that airline should be responsible letting the client know that country your traveling to requires a certain amount months valid passport before traveling and the airline wont book the ticket

Request for Airlines to Provide Passport Validity Requirements to Clients

I hope this message finds you well. I am writing to bring attention to an issue that I believe needs urgent consideration. As a loyal customer , I have recently come across an essential aspect that I believe should be made clearer to clients before booking flights.

Many countries around the world have specific passport validity requirements that travelers must adhere to before entering their borders. I kindly request that Airline takes responsibility for notifying clients about these requirements during the booking online.

Specifically, I would like to propose that Airlines includes a clear and prominent message during the ticket booking stage, informing clients of any minimum passport validity requirements for the destination country. This information is crucial as it helps travelers avoid any potential travel disruptions or issues that may arise due to passport validity concerns. By providing this essential information upfront, it will avoid lost money when the if the airline ticket can not be refunded.
