

Submitted by email to the Canadian Transportation Agency

Subject: Animals on planes

This situation of animals allowed on planes has gotten completely ludicrous. Dogs for emotional support? Really! Take a tranquilizer instead! No one has the right to inconvenience an entire crew of passengers taking a flight.

It's the person who cannot fly without „emotional support“ who should be inconvenienced.

Let's get real for just a minute here, dogs DO NOT belong on flights! Should they be on one, they belong in the Cargo section, NOT with the passengers, nor the crew, but in CARGO!

Yes, I do know what I'm talking about, we moved from Eastern To Western Canada with our family ( Dog and Cat were part of our family) Although we love them dearly, they travelled together in the CARGO section, and yes, they survived it very well, No trauma! Prior to taking a flight, I inquire if there are ANY animals in the passenger section of the plane, if there are, I DO NOT TAKE THAT FLIGHT! THAT is MY right.

B. Eifler

(Removed)