Feedback: This idea is ludicrous! It's like charging someone to call 911! With the amount of money the government gets from the travel industry they should be able to self fund this program. Putting all the onus on the airlines will simply raise the price of air travel as this cost will have to be passed on to the consumer. Another government ploy to divert our hard income into the hands of the government.

If a fee is required, perhaps the looser of the complainant should be responsible for the fee. That might discourage false claims from happening as well.
