

Submitted by email to the Canadian Transportation Agency

Subject : Regulations needed for animals on passenger airplanes

Good morning,

We can understand the need for Service Dogs being allowed on passenger airplanes, and that would be service dogs specifically trained to allow their handicapped owners to travel. OTHER ANIMALS SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED EVER! Airplanes are designed and built and operated for humans to transport them from point A to point B and should remain as such. This is what we pay for and expect and need. I personally have allergies to the fur of animals, as do thousands of other Canadians, and find it unbelievable that animals allowed on airplanes could travel in the cabin and make me sick. On one flight I took recently I was moved a few rows back from a cat someone brought along, but in such a confined space all air became polluted from that one favorite cat companion.

That is unnecessary and should be dealt with by not allowing pets in the cabin along with humans.

Our names are Lionel and Lucille (Removed), Canadian citizens since birth standing up for our rights ! Please regulate this major problem as we go into an age where some humans treat animals as human and expect all to do the same. Animals are not human!

Regulations needed for animals on passenger airplanes Sincerely,

Lionel and Lucille (Removed)