

Thank you for this opportunity to voice my concerns and request for attention to travellers with life threatening allergies.

As a mother of two peanut allergic children, travel has always been a challenge for our family. We welcome the opportunity to sit in a peanut free/nut free buffer zone. WE always take advantage of that opportunity. I like the idea of wiping down the seats and having airlines trained in usage of the epipen. I think that if airlines sell themselves as being “nut free”, they should be held accountable for that promise.
